

Notice to Litigants Representing Themselves

Arizona Courts have long held that litigants, who chose to represent themselves, are held to the same standard as an attorney.

"It is well established that where a party conducts his case in propria persona he is entitled to no more consideration than if he had been represented by counsel, and he is held to the same familiarity with required procedures and the same notice of statutes and local rules as would be attributed to a qualified member of the bar. Copper State Bank v. Soggio, 139 Ariz. 438, 441 (App. 1983).